TAMMANY INVITES CLARK. Asks Missouri Congressman to Speak Fourth of July. REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Mexico, Mo., June 14.-Congressman Champ Clark has just returned to his home in Bowling Green, after being waterbound in Lilinois for some time, having been caught there on his way home from a lecture tour. On reaching home he found an invitation from Tammany Hall, New York, to attend the Fourth of July celebration of that orgarization and address the Tammany Society. He will accept if possible, ety. He will accept if possible.

July 4 will be the tenth anniversary of the speech made by Mr. Clark in Tammany Hall, when he and Congressman Hendrix of Brooklyn, a former Missourian, outlined the course of the West in the next campaign, that of 1898.

That meeting in Tammany Hall and the widely divergent views on the money question and the subject of party control expressed by Clark and Hendrix constituted the opening of the great factional fight in the Democratic party. Newspaper comment at that time was wide and varied, and Mr. Clark's declaration of the political independence of the West was largely quoted.

The present invitation to speak before the great New York organization the 4th of next month is regarded here, the political hub of Clark's district, as a very auspicious indication of restored harmony in the Democratic party.

EMBARRASSING TO HIS PARTY.

Postmaster General Payne's Prom ise of Revelations to Come Believed to Relate to Former Assistant's Case.

The Republic Bureau, Washington, June 14.-There are indica tions that some very surprising develop ments will occur in the Post-Office Depart ment investigations during the next week. From remarks by leading officials, the public will soon be in a position to judge singers on the stage and 9,000 persons whether or not former Postmaster-General seated on the floor. of First Assistant Perry S. Heath's department in 1900 in connection with operations of the Washington City Post Office.

The Postmaster General has yielded to the pressure of public opinion and has decided to make public early next week the report of the Fourth Assistant on that investigation. Mr. Payne had expressed the hope that he might receive the report of the inspection of the Washington office, recently completed, in time to make public sallent points in two or three days.

The hall, which had been elaboately decorated for the occasion, presented a scene of dazzling brilliancy and artistic beauty. Upon the walls and pendant from the ceilings of the arched roof there was a lavish display of American and national German profusion of every direction.

This afternoon's concert was mainly a "welcome" concert, designed is a greeting from the Baltimore singers to the singing was participated in by 2 500 Faltimore singers and 2,500 school children. Smith suppressed an official investigation sallent points in two or three days.

He has decided that, if there is any delay in receiving this report, the other papers of the case will be given out withou TO WHAT DID PAYNE REFER?

These papers will be comprehensive in They will cover the reply of General Bristow to the letter of the Post-

General Bristow to the letter of the Postmaster General asking for information concerning the charges of maltreatment made by S. W. Tulloch, ex-cashier of the local office, together with the report of the inspectors made at the time of the transfer of the Washington office from Postmaster Willett to Postmaster Merritt, July 1, 1899, and also the report of the inspection of that office made July 1, 1990.

It has been publicly charged that the report of the inspectors during the Smith administration reflected so seriously upon First Assistant Postmaster General Heath that the papers in the case were treated as confidential matter and piaced in posssession of the Fourth Assistant,

Mr. Payne may have had in mind this report and probable action thereon when he informed a close friend that the most astounding phase of the Post-Office investigation would develop in a few days.

HEATH GOING TO ASIA.

HEATH GOING TO ASIA. There is a good deal of comment on Perry Heath's plan to visit Asia at this particular time. It is looked upon as a coincidence that he should go so far from Washington and his friends think the character ington, and his friends think the character of the report made by the Civil-Service Commission would impel any self-respecting public man whose record is involved to remain at convenient call until investigations are completed.

Although Mr. Heath has retired from the department, he is not a private citizen. He is a director in one or two national banks and also is secretary of the Republican National Executive Committee.

and also is secretary of the Republican National Executive Committee.

The Republicans admit that it is now most important for Mr. Heath to explain the serious charges against his official conduct as Assistant Postmaster General, and that his absence from the country until this is done will be decidedly embarrassing to the administration and to the Republican Executive Committee, of which Mr. Heath is a leading member.

SMITH'S UNENVIABLE POSITION. SMITH'S UNENVIABLE POSITION.

Recently Charles Emory Smith visited Washington and had a long conference with his successor, Postmaster General Payne.

his successor, Postmaster General Payne.
Upon his return to Philadelphia, Mr. Smith in his paper made a number of mysterious references to "knowing a thing or two" about which he would enlighten his readers from time to time.

The purport of Mr. Smith's editorials apparently was that the agitation of Post Office corruption was warranted, and that in due time he would expose the plot.

Inasmuch as the Civil Service Commission's report bears especially hard upon the administration of Mr. Smith himself, his friends in Washington suggest that, if he has any important information to divulge, it would be well to furnish it at this time.

if he has any important information to divulge, it would be well to furnish it at this time.

It is certain that Congress will not rest content with the investigation made by the postal officials. Although Mr. Payne lately has offered no obstructive suggestion to the investigation, his attempt in the beginning to belittle the charges, and the serious disclosures which have been made since, leave the result of any searches made under him unsatisfactory.

It is believed that Congress will appoint a commission to inquire into the thoroughness of the department's self-investigation and see if any of the disgraceful story remains untold. The reports are given out by the department in just such manner as it pleases, and it is impossible to tell whether any important facts have been suppressed or understated.

The Civil Service Commission found that every charge made by Mr. Tulloch was absolutely true. But Mr. Tulloch knew only of the department officials' crookedness, as it affected the Washington Post Office, How much other corruption exists in other branches of the service could best be disclosed by an outside nonpartisan commission and there is little doubt that Congress will provide for this, in order that the full extent of the postal scandals may be made known.

Already there has been evidenced a purpose in the department to tie up routes ordered by Machen, and to suspend work on all new routes. This policy has met with general protest, and the claim is made from all parts of the Union that it is unwarranted to withhold the benefits provided by Congress merely because the department could not execute the laws honestly.

The Congressmen have been stirred up to such an extent as to secure from the President a promise that the routes needed would be established, without waiting for the close of the pending investigations. But the lawmakers have been very much irritated by the conditions in the department, and there is a general desire to overhaul it.

New York, June 14.-Preliminary to its invasion of the retail field of poultry, butter and eggs, the Beef Trust has rented of Condon Brothers the entire block facing Tenth avenue, between Thirteen and Fourteenth streets. Work on the alterations to he buildings has begun. This action of the trust is said to be one of retaliation on the commission houses and butter men of New York State for opposing it in its sales of oleomargarine by having the tax on that article increased and insisting that the so-called butter should be branded and sold for what it really is.

Some early-maturing varieties of corn that can be recommended are 'Pride of the North,' 'Riley's Favorite,' Reed's Yellow Dent' and any variety of flint corn. These varieties should be planted somewhat thicker than the varieties usually grown in Missouri.

"These crops are grown extensively every year in some sections of Missouri. They yield a large amount of forage, and if planted before the ist of July they may also produce a good yield of grain. The best variety of sorghum for Missouri, under the present late conditions, is the Early Amber.' For bottom lands we recommend the 'Early Orange,' which stands up better. This should be planted in rows about three or three and a half feet apart. The most practical way to plant sorghum is in the ordinary corn planter, using the broom-corn disks. It can also be planted with a disk or shoe drill. On high lands it should always be planted in rows.

"Kaffir corn is successfully grown, and may be grown with profit in other sections of the State. For the production of grain, Kaffir corn is to be selected always in preference to sorghum.

The best varities for Missouri are 'Clay' for hay, and the 'New Era,' Warren's Extra Early' and 'Red Ripper' for grain.

"If cowpeas are planted immediately it will be possible to cut them for hay during the last week in September, and by disking the ground thoroughly, put it in splendid condition for wheat. This crop furnishes one of the most valuable grains for feeding purposes that can be produced on the average Missouri farm.

"The yield of soy beans is from twenty to thirty bushels per acre. They can be planted in June at the rate of half a bushel per acre. They can be harvested by pastured with other animals, or may be harvested for their grain.
